6. Historical context and useful facts

- The Ballon d'Or was first awarded in 1956; the 2026 event was its 70th anniversary ceremony.
- Harry Kane was the first English men's winner since Michael Owen in 2001, a 25-year gap.
- Alexia Putellas's 2026 win was her third, following 2021 and 2022.
- Lamine Yamal won the Men's Young Talent of the Year award for the third consecutive year, according to the official results coverage.
- The 2026 event included awards for men's and women's players, goalkeepers, coaches, clubs and strikers, plus the Sócrates Award.

7. How to interpret the statistics

Ballon d'Or points and first-place votes describe the jury's voting outcome; they are not direct measures of goals, assists or overall player quality. Season statistics describe on-field output over a defined period. Comparisons should therefore keep voting results separate from performance metrics, and should note the competition and season attached to each number.
